A THRILLING TRIP

MCPHERSON FAMILY JOURNEY TO BEAR VALLEY THROUGH SNOW AND ICE

Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. McPherson and family had quite a thrilling experience in going to Big Bear to spend the Thanksgiving holidays with the absent member of the family, Miss Vera McPherson, who is teaching in Big Bear Valley. They left here Thursday morning, but did not succeed in reaching the valley Thanksgiving Day, because of the snow storm which raged all day and blocked the trails. Of twenty-two machines which attempted the trip on Thursday only four got through and all Thanksgiving Day the Bear Valley people were busy digging out machines. It was decidedly dangerous to make the attempt because of the ice on the roads and also because the snow piled up on the wind shields and blocked the vision of the drivers. The McPhersons spent Thursday in San Bernardino starting for Big Bear Friday morning and arriving at their destination Friday night when the belated Thanksgiving dinner was enjoyed. From nine o'clock Friday morning until seven o'clock in the evening they traveled through snow which averaged a foot in depth in the valley. A most unusual sight was the desert, covered with snow, but on their return journey Sunday the desert covering was entirely gone. Some of the machines which attempted to make the ascent were out two nights and the passengers suffered considerable discomfort. The McPhersons had a cold trip and were a little frost-bitten, but enjoyed every minute of the journey despite its hazards. They found about two hundred people in the valley and also learned that the Braly party had reached their cabins without mishap, having made the trip before the storm reached its maximum.

The members of the J. H. Braly party which also got back from Big Bear Sunday night reports a hard trip Wednesday through light snow and mud and over icy mountain trails, but a successful one, thanks to the thoughtfulness of the man who has charge of their cottages who came out to meet them with lanterns and snow shovels and piloted them in. Otherwise they might have shared the unpleasant experiences of those who spent the night on the trail. Snow fell part of Thursday, but the weather then cleared and they had two delightful days of sunshine and frolic in the snow, the young people of the party practicing skiing.

STATE NEWS

SAN FRANCISCO WOMEN TO FIGHT HIGH PRICES—SAN DIEGO CELEBRATES

SAN FRANCISCO.—Housewives were to hold their second meeting here in the City Hall this afternoon to discuss plans of attack on the high cost of living.

Abstinence from luxuries, invoked as a war measure by the food administration and methods of retrenchment in the household will be urged as effective weapons in the crusade. Use of the boycott will be advocated as a means of bringing down inflated prices and discouraging known profiteers.

SAN DIEGO, Calif. — Regular train service starts today over the San Diego and Arizona railway between San Diego and El Centro. At the beginning there will be one passenger train daily each way. On December 10th service will be inaugurated between San Diego and Yuma, making direct connections with Southern Pacific trains to and from the east. A six-day celebration will mark the opening, the first four having been allotted to this city and the remaining two to Imperial Valley cities.

SAN FRANCISCO. — Contempt proceedings against the First National Bank of Modesto and the Union Savings Bank of Modesto were to be heard here today by Federal Judge William C. Van Fleet. The contempt charges are the outgrowth of a suit filed by Novena and Fred V. Lineker against Mary J. Dillon and her husband, Thomas V. Dillon. Judgment was rendered in favor of the plaintiffs for $32,000. The Linekers, however, have been unable to collect and now charge the First National Bank of Modesto, of which E. C. Peck is president, and the Union Savings Bank, of which C. D. Swann is head, and G. W. O'Connor conspired to aid the Dillons to prevent the Linekers from attaching certain property belonging to Mrs. Dillon.

CITY TEACHERS' CLUB

ADDRESSED BY REPRESENTATIVE J. R. WHITE AND SUPT. R. D. WHITE

At the last regular meeting of the Glendale City Teachers' Club, the president, Miss Clara Midcalf, presided.

After reports of various committees, Miss Midcalf made special mention of Mr. Jensen's kindness in giving five free notices on the screen of the Palace Grand Theater of the first number of the University Extension Course of entertainments being put on under auspices of the Club.

The speaker of the afternoon was John Robert White, our representative in the assembly of the state legislature.

He gave a very interesting talk on some of his experiences as a member of the Educational Committee at the last term of legislation, also complimented the teachers of Glendale City Schools in forming a Club with such high ideals, and of what he considered a teacher's ideals should be.

He emphasized the teaching of patriotism and felt the paramount business of our schools was the making of good American citizens.

Superintendent R. D. White followed with a brief explanation of the Smith-Bunkhead Bill to come before Congress at the next session in which an appropriation of $100,000,000 would be asked to eliminate illiteracy and teach Americanization, also to establish another department in the Cabinet, to be known as Sec'y of Americanization.

PUBLICITY COM.

HOME-COMING DAY

CELEBRATED AT CENTRAL CHRISTIAN CHURCH WITH ALL DAY SERVICES

Sunday was the annual home-coming day at Central Christian Church, which was celebrated with all-day services. Attendance on the Sunday School was the largest in many months and at the morning church service hardly a seat was vacant. "Go Forward" was the theme of the pastor's sermon, under which he reviewed the achievements of the past and plans for the future. It was an inspiring, optimistic talk.

A picnic dinner was served to about 100 between 12:30 and 1:30 in the church bungalow, each family bringing enough for its own requirements and the guests it had invited. After-dinner speeches were made by some of the home-coming guests, the list including Mrs. L. E. Berkeley of Buena Park, A. L. Lawshe of Monrovia, Miss Forrest, who recently returned from a year's sojourn in her Long Island home. (She is now permanently located in Glendale), Mrs. Mel Powell of Pasadena, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Gibbs of Lancaster, Dr. A. L. Ferguson of Los Angeles, and J. H. Thompson of La Mars, Missouri. Other guests present at the dinner were: Mr. and Mrs. Hart, Mr. and Mrs. Jones, Miss Marshall of Lawndale, California, Stanley Berkeley of Buena Park, Mrs. A. L. Ferguson of Los Angeles.

At two o'clock a miscellaneous program was enjoyed in the church auditorium which opened with songs by the congregation. Then Miss Bertha Jackson read Longfellow's "King Robert of Sicily" with piano accompaniment, giving as an encore, "The Darkey's Dream," in dialect. Two beautiful violin selections were played by Roger Baker, and a fine address was made by Rev. J. W. Utter, who organized and was pastor of the church for five years. He described the incidents of its founding and gave its early history. That concluded the program and following the dismissal of the audience there was an informal reception in which the old friends of Mr. Utter exchanged greetings with him. He is now a resident of Covina.

Evening exercises opened with a song service of about half an hour by the choir, which consisted of anthems and of songs by the male quartette. The sermon was by Rev. Utter, whose theme was "The Continued Expansion and Ultimate Victory of Christ's Kingdom." He strongly urged the building of a new church and expressed the conviction that hopes in that direction would soon be realized.

OPENS LUNCH ROOM

Wm. Kynce is interested in a new venture in Glendale. He is opening a lunch room at 118 West Broadway in the room formerly occupied by the Times Agency and will endeavor to cater to the hungry of the city. He will be open for business Tuesday morning.

SHARP NOTES TO MEXICO

TOLD BY U. S. TO IMMEDIATELY RELEASE JENKINS AND DROP SIDE ISSUES SHE IS TRYING TO MAKE

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—The State Department today gave out the text of its latest note replying to the Mexican note on the Jenkins case. The note reiterates the demand that Jenkins be released and declares the belief of the American government that the perjury charge against Jenkins is unfounded. The note was dispatched yesterday and it is believed it is already in the hands of the Mexican Foreign Office.

The note takes decided issue with Mexico and charges that Mexico is trying to cloud the true situation and conceal from the Mexican people and from the United States the fact that Puebla, the second largest city in Mexico is without adequate protection against bandits who were able to enter the city and abduct an American consular official without difficulty.

The note also charges that Mexico is trying to make Jenkins a defendant and to try him instead of prosecuting his kidnappers. The note is lengthy and sharp in tone. It demands that Mexico immediately release Jenkins and drop all the side issues which the United States charges Mexico with trying to inject into the case.

CHARGES JENKINS WITH PERJURY

MEXICAN GOVERNMENT STILL INSISTS THAT HE CONSPIRED WITH HIS KIDNAPPERS

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 1.—It was officially stated here today that evidence proving that Consular Agent Jenkins is guilty of perjury in connection with his recent kidnapping, will be forwarded to the American Department of State today by the Mexican Foreign Office.

In an interview with the United Press Jenkins declared emphatically that he is innocent and can prove his innocence conclusively. He said he had refused to furnish bail because such action would merely delay the termination of his case. He said he would furnish bail however, if instructed to do so by the State Department.

Jenkins' wife visits him daily in jail and brings him food. Thanksgiving Day he had a regular American Thanksgiving dinner.

WARLIKE PREPARATIONS

MEXICAN REPORTS INDICATE THAT CARRANZA IS CONCENTRATING TROOPS ON BORDER

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

EL PASO, Dec. 1.—The Mexican Consulate here declares it received unconfirmed reports today that American Consular Agent Jenkins had been released.

Mexican reports show that Carranza is concentrating troops along the border.

WARRANT FOR ARREST OF U. S. SOLAN

SENATOR NEWBERRY OF MICHIGAN AND MANY OTHERS CHARGED WITH ELECTION FRAUDS

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Dec. 1.—District Judge Sessions today ordered issued a batch of warrants for U. S. Senator Newberry and one hundred and thirty-five others who were indicted Saturday on charges of election frauds. The warrant for Senator Newberry charges conspiracy and perjury. Officials said that Newberry will be placed under arrest in Washington and that he is not immune from prosecution and arrest as a United States Senator because the charge against him constitutes a felony.

HOUSES OF CONGRESS CONVENE

REQUESTS FOR APPROPRIATIONS TOTALLING $4,473,969,358 ARE PRESENTED

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Speaker Gillette called the regular session of the House of Representatives to order promptly at noon today. One hundred and fifty members were present. A half minute later the Senate convened.

Requests for appropriations totalling $4,473,696,358 were laid before both houses. This is $1,155,000,000 less than was appropriated last year for current government expenses.

The Department of Labor today filed a report with Congress showing that sixty alien radicals had been deported in the last two years and that eighty-eight others have been ordered deported. A total of 697 arrests on deportation warrants have been made exclusive of those arrested since November 1st.

PRINCE OF WALES REACHES LONDON

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

LONDON, Dec. 1.—The Prince of Wales arrived here this morning returning from his American visit.

P. E. CAR ADVENTURE

STRIKES OIL TRUCK ON LAKE SHORE AND RUNS AMUCK, INJURING TWO PASSENGERS

A two-car P. E. train had quite an adventure Saturday afternoon between 2:30 and 3 o'clock on Lake Shore. A big oil truck and tank was crossing the tracks at Temple and although the car was moving at a very moderate rate it was too swift for the truck which was struck, knocking a hole in the tank and letting out several hundreds of gallons of oil. The front end of the car was badly shattered and splintered and the shock of the impact turned it cross-wise of the track breaking its connection with the rear car. Over the street slippery with oil it skidded into a Ford car standing by the curb, demolishing it. The driver, seeing what was coming, escaped. The driver of the oil truck and the motorman were also unhurt. The only persons injured, so far as learned, were two Glendale passengers, Mrs. John Cotton, who was sitting in a front seat near the motorman, and who was cut by splinters of wood and badly bruised by being thrown about. Her clothing was practically ruined by the oil with which she was plentifully sprinkled. She is confined to her bed, but no bones are broken and she thinks a few days will restore her to her normal condition of health. The other sufferer is Mrs. E. W. Kinney, who was thrown forward by the first shock and got to her feet when the car began to skid across the street. When it struck the Ford car she was thrown out, face-downward, on the pavement, and didn't know what had happened to her until she recovered consciousness in the receiving hospital where both ladies were taken. Mrs. Kinney is now at her home, 123 Elk avenue, where she is confined to her bed, suffering from nerve shock and from severe bruises all over the body. While it was and is a very painful experience, the friends of the two victims consider it a miracle they were not more seriously hurt. Mrs. Cotton declares her conviction that she would have been killed had the car been moving at high speed.

CHARACTERISTICS OF COLONIAL ARCHITECTURE

The Colonial bungalow, which appears to be at high tide now in Southern California, is in considerable favor in Glendale and a good many of the new residences are of that style. When asked to define in a general way what constitutes the difference between a Colonial bungalow and the sort to which we became accustomed in the past, a local architect stated that the true Colonial residence is supposed to have Corinthian columns across the front, to have a surfaced exterior and a rough lumber exterior and the surface painted white, and to have a boxed-in cornice.

BUSINESS CHANGE

DAVID L. GREGG AND C. E. NEALE BUY OUT TOMPKINS INTEREST IN HARDWARE

A change in the ownership of the retail hardware store at 107 North Brand is of considerable interest to Glendale residents. The former owner, David L. Gregg, who sold six years ago to LeRoy W. Bosserman, has purchased the Tompkins interest and in partnership with C. E. Neale, who has been connected with the business for several years, will conduct it under the firm name of Gregg & Neale. Mr. Tompkins is returning to Michigan where he has a business which it is said demands his attention. Mr. Gregg also has a machinery business in Salt Lake City, which he will retain, but inasmuch as Mrs. Gregg and the Gregg family did not wish to change from Glendale to the Utah city, he was glad to avail himself of the opportunity to resume his business here. It will make a strong firm and the announcement has been received with general satisfaction by his former business associates.

BUY HOME IN GLENDAL

Mr. and Mrs. R. D. R. Topliff had the pleasure recently of entertaining Mr. Topliff's nephew, D. E. Reed, from Decorah, Iowa. After looking around quite a little in different places, he decided that our beautiful Glendale was the place for him, his wife and daughter, Esther, so has purchased a lovely home at 330 Eulalia street. Mr. Reed is a retired hardware merchant.

WEATHER FORECAST: Unsettled weather; probably rain. Temperature unchanged.

EX-SOLDIER RETURNS

H. D. CHARLTON NOW AT HOME IN GLENDAL AND CONNECTED WITH LUMBER CO.

H. D. Charlton, an ex-serviceman who has claimed Glendale as his residence since 1906, has recently been discharged from the army and returned to this city where he is now at home at 114A North Orange St. Before going overseas he was engaged in architectural work and after the armistice he took advantage of the opportunity to take a four months' course in architecture in the A. E. F. University in which he learned considerable by theory and observation of the French architecture. During the war he was engaged in map making for the army and mapped the towns of La Guerche in the Department of Cher and of Cerons in the Department of Gironde. These maps are very necessary to enable army authorities to locate the billets of their men who had to be distributed wherever places could be found for them in the French cities and villages. He has now identified himself with the Bentley-Schoenman Lumber Company, taking charge of the designing of the new houses they are building.

FAITH IN THE WORD

ALONZO F. BAKER GIVES DISCOURSE SATURDAY MORNING ON "SIGNS OF TIMES"

"Amid the ruins of a world, the one structure which has withstood the shocks of disruption, is faith—faith in the sure Word of God as revealed in Sacred Writ," said Mr. Alonzo F. Baker, of Mountain View, Cal., in a discourse before a congregation of Seventh-day Adventists at the Wilson Street Grammar School last Saturday morning. Mr. Baker is associate editor of "Signs of the Times," a weekly periodical of the Adventists which has a large circulation throughout the United States and Canada.

The school board has very kindly permitted the Seventh-day Adventists to use the Grammar School auditorium temporarily for their services, as preparations are under way for moving the Adventist Church, at Wilson and Isabel streets, to a new location on Isabel street, near California, where it will be enlarged to accommodate the congregation, which has greatly outgrown the present structure.

Mr. Baker and Pastor Ernest Lloyd, also of Mountain View, who formerly of Glendale, conducted the services Saturday morning. Mr. Baker pointed to the significant happenings of the past few months in the political, labor, military, social and religious world. Turn where you will, he said, unrest and chaos is seen, and today fear grips the hearts of the men upon whom rests the tremendous responsibility of directing world affairs. As Bishop Ryle, of the Church of England, said recently, "The cement seems to have fallen out of the walls of society." Again, a well-known editor says we find ourselves preparing for a future war while the ink is hardly dry upon the treaty of peace of the great war just past. I read in the "Los Angeles Times" that Lord Jellicoe, of the British navy, is making a tour of America, and that he has wired to England to place a fleet of 102 vessels in the Pacific immediately. The British Parliament has appropriated $320,000,000 to be expended within twelve months for airplanes and other air equipment. Japan has appropriated $824,000,000 for a large navy.

"Three years ago we had never heard of Bolshevism. The word was coined in 1905, but outside of a little province in Russia it was unknown. But it has spread from Russia over Germany, into Turkey and the Balkan States, and its menace is even found in our own fair land. It shows a desire on the part of men to throw away all restraint, to do away with all government and every rule of right which men have looked up to for years. Law is that which holds society together. Throw away law and we have anarchy. Yet this spirit of lawlessness has so permeated society that we hear of high school students demanding soviet regulations for their schools, and threatening to strike if their demands are not granted.

"In the religious world standards are being lowered in an effort to secure popularity. The pastor of one prominent New York church, of an evangelical denomination, has induced the church to vote that the name of Jesus Christ shall not be mentioned.

GLENDALE, CALIFORNIA, MONDAY, DECEMBER 1, 1919

PROGRAM OF HEALTH IMPROVEMENT

With the opening of the Red Cross Christmas Seal sale on December 1, the state will witness the start of the most ambitious program of public health improvement that has been launched in California. Under the program every section of the state is to be benefited, according to the plans made by the California Tuberculosis Association.

More open air schools and clinics in the larger cities, more visiting nurses in the rural districts, larger summer camps for boys and girls who need sunshine and fresh air, help for patients needing home care, occupational therapy in tuberculosis hospitals, assistance for discharged patients in securing employment for which they are fitted—in fact every feature of a complete and comprehensive campaign to stamp out the White Plague in California has been outlined and the success of the campaign hinges only on the number of Red Cross Christmas seals which are affixed to letters and Christmas packages during the holidays.

In order to insure California having its part in making tuberculosis "The Next To Go," (the slogan for this year's seal sale and the association activities for 1920) the public is expected to buy $178,800 worth of the Christmas seals.

Naturally there was unusual interest in the courtroom of the Jefferson Market Court, in New York City, when a woman magistrate presided, the other day, over her first session. A woman judge is a new thing in judicial procedure, and a description of the scene shows that many of those who gathered to look on or participate, or because they could not help themselves, had their doubts that the law would be administered as effectively as by a magistrate of the sterner sex. The newspaper camera took a photograph; the first case was called, and the existence of a woman magistrate in the everyday life of the chief American city had become an accomplished fact. What is most important, it became, as the session went on, an accomplished fact that stood beyond criticism, that the new magistrate fulfilled the qualifications set down by Socrates when he wrote: "Four things belong to a judge: to hear courteously, to answer wisely, to consider soberly, and to decide impartially."—C. S. Monitor.

AMENDMENT TO CONSTITUTION

SENATOR JONES OF WASHINGTON TO PRESENT ONE RELATIVE TO CITIZENSHIP OF ALIENS

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Senator Jones of Washington today announced that he would introduce in Congress a constitutional amendment forbidding children whose parents are ineligible to citizenship from becoming citizens. The measure aims to prevent the Japanese and Chinese from gaining citizenship through birth in the United States.

The Anaheim Herald says steps are to be taken by state authorities to conserve natural gas. A good place to start would be among the soap box orators on Los Angeles street in L. A.

The Monrovia Daily News tells of an editor who started poor twenty years ago and now has $50,000. He acquired the money through hard work, thrift, economy, and the death of an uncle who left him $49,999.

Redondo Beach is learning some concrete facts. All bids for the repair of her damaged pier had to be rejected because they were higher than the bond issue voted for the repair of the pier. Some of the bids were so high that the City Trustees wished they could use them for piles out at the end of the pier where the water is so deep. They figure that the bids would hold up anything in sight.

The Pasadena Star-News says a little girl there told her mother that their garbage man was awful good, because when a can of garbage dropped and spilled all over him, he just sat down on the sidewalk and told God all about it.

 ed in the prayers, the hymns nor the sermons, because he says that name is distasteful to Jew and Mohammedan. Thus the attempt is made to preach a Christianity with Christ left out.
 "Again, a committee appointed by several large religious organizations has expunged from the Bible, 4023 verses, and has produced what they call the 'Shorter Bible.' The most of their work was cutting out verses from the New Testament which would be distasteful to certain popular but unscriptural theories. The 'Shorter Bible' leaves out the verses that tell man he has a carnal heart, that he is naturally sinful, and that he needs a Saviour. All the texts telling about the second coming of Christ were expunged. Every text telling about the millennium was eliminated, and every text which says the Bible is a sacred book. In fact, the book of Revelation, otherwise known as the Apocalypse, was almost entirely expunged. Now this 'Shorter Bible' is being advertised as the Bible most suited to Sunday Schools, and many religious periodicals are saying but little in criticism. It certainly is an unworthy attempt to keep from the masses many Bible truths.
 "At the same time spiritualism numbers its thousands of converts. Seventh-day Adventists have said for years that spiritualism would yet be a world religion. In 1850, the year after the Fox sisters began to experiment with the 'rappings,' Seventh-day Adventists published the statement that it would some day be considered blasphemy to speak against the rapping, and that the manifestations of Satan would increase. Satan has capitalized the world's sorrow, and though the Bible assures us the 'dead know not anything,' he is, by his subtle, deceptive manifestations, causing thousands to believe that their deceased relatives are still alive. Almost every leading journal in the world is now featuring the subject of spiritualism.
 "In the world's unrest we seem to hear the echo of Christ's words, as the poor man should have the opportunity to pay for as little land as will provide the home he wishes, with an insurance of sufficient light and air about it to make that home decent and healthful. A cottage 25 or 30 feet in depth does not need a lot 100 feet deep to accommodate it. If the back yard were used as a garden, the case might be different. In most cases the reduction of the cost of the site would more than offset the value of the rear garden. A neighborhood with lots of less depth, than common, could have streets of less width, with a small park in the plan. The small neighborhood park would mean much to the families living around it, and the entire character of the neighborhood would be improved by reason of the fact that it would acquire a certain individuality, which would be impossible if the improvement had been carried out in the conventional manner.

CITY PLANNING

By Wm. F. Bixby, C. E.

Traffic capacity, roadways and sidewalks, pavements, grades, tree planting, street signs, lamp posts and adequate lighting, are details of street design which are worthy of the most careful study for streets of different classes, in order to get the most satisfactory results. Get away from the monotony of straight streets and avoid identical treatment of adjoining streets. A variation of the treatment of different parts of the same street may be resorted to where the reason for such treatment is obvious.

On hillside streets, or where the property on one side is devoted to business and on the other side to residences, a single roadway may be constructed, near one side, bordered by a narrow walk, while wide walks, grass plats, shrubbery and trees are placed on the other side. Hillside streets may be planned so that the houses are built and face only on the upper side of the street; it may be desirable to put a walk on one side of the street only.

The importance of street trees in a city cannot be over-estimated; their position is one of the details to receive careful study. Trees placed between the sidewalk and the building line give added dignity and the street appears to be wider than where the trees are placed along the curb. A tree out of place is just as objectionable as any other misplaced object; human safety being paramount to the preservation of the tree.

In residential sections it is not necessary to have a wide roadway or to have it paved with an expensive pavement. If the roadways are improved to a greater width than the traffic requires there is a big, unnecessary expense; extra cost for the additional area of pavement, extra cost for cleaning, for maintenance, for sprinkling, and more unhealthy dust. The main streets, which are the direct lines of travel, and which get the bulk of the traffic, are wider, and should be paved with a modern, permanent pavement.

The direction of the streets should be planned to allow houses the maximum of sunlight, to preserve extensive views, and to save noble trees. Purely residential streets should be quiet, self-contained and gardenlike neighborhoods.

Transportation

The fullest consideration should be given to the problems of transportation in the planning of a city, to make the expansion of transit facilities possible, as required, with a minimum of disturbance in the general city plan. If due provision be made for getting passengers and goods into and out of the city, general business and manufactures will be attracted and the population will increase; then, as the city grows, the problems of internal communication must be worked out. Ample facilities to enter and leave a city are as important as those for communication between different parts of the city.

The handicap placed upon the transit system through an inadequate and badly arranged street system can never be fully overcome. Provision for adequate street widths for transit purposes is fully justified; the difficulty and the cost of constructing such lines being great and intensified in narrow streets. The inflexibility of the surface railway, in comparison with motor busses and other free-wheel vehicles, necessitated a greater roadway width for their accommodation. It also prohibits a double track surface railway in any street having a roadway less than 40 feet between curb lines or a single track railway where the distance between curbs is less than 30 feet. Any street which is likely to be called upon to accommodate surface railway tracks should be given a width of not less than 70 feet. Sidewalks should not be unduly curtailed in width to provide space for surface railways.

Public Buildings

The designation "public buildings" applies to those buildings in which the business of the city, state or nation may be conducted, such as schoolhouses, libraries and museums, administration buildings, penal and charitable institutions, churches, hospitals, markets, police and fire houses, public baths, hotels, apartment houses, structures connected with water supply and drainage, buildings used for amusement and entertainment, buildings of public service corporations, railway stations and terminals, lighting and heating plants, and financial institutions. Public buildings should generally be placed where they can be seen from the streets approaching them, as at grade summits.

The possibility of a municipal square backed up with an open plaza for automobiles, with an auditorium, the library, the city hall, and the homes of social organizations, placed in a setting of lawns, trees and flowers, gives an opportunity for ample study.

Railway stations should be treated as gateways of the city and faced on generous, open spaces, with parking room for automobiles and teams meeting trains. Resting places and places of public convenience should be in the neighborhood of the civic center and near railway stations, and drinking fountains should be installed at convenient places.

The effective grouping of public buildings, to create civic centers, should receive much attention. Locate public buildings, whether isolated or in groups, so that each building shall be a single unit, even though it may bear a certain relation to the others; give each building a site of its own, with due regard to those of its neighbors. Great buildings are seen to advantage when flanked by those of minor importance.

Limitations as to the proportion of the lot which may be built upon and as to the height and general arrangement of buildings are among regulations calculated to ensure to the citizens at large the full enjoyment of the advantages which a well-organized city should supply.

Still other advantages which the public should enjoy are: The free and safe use of the streets; the freedom from obstruction of light and air by a neighboring owner; the prevention of the appropriation of public property to private use; the prohibition of the erection of structures, either permanent or temporary, which will offend the eye; the guarantee of the character of a district when once established, by protecting it against the invasion of industries, uses and occupations inconsistent with that character; and the conservation of the value of private property by a consistent scheme of development and improvement.

Private interests must ever give way to the welfare of the community, and such infringement of those interests as: Exposure of goods for sale on sidewalks, loading and unloading of bulky packages by means of skids extending across the sidewalk, erection of loading platforms on sidewalks by warehouses, erection of storm doors, porches, steps to floors above and below the street level, the encroaching upon the sidewalks of show windows and supporting columns forming an integral part of the buildings, and the storage of trucks and machinery in the streets at night should not be tolerated.

The various industries should be classified and each class restricted to a definite and limited area. Apartment houses and garages should be excluded from residential streets. The right of the general public to protection from unsightly and offensive development must be respected. The individual owner is entitled to a guarantee of the permanence of the character of the district in which he has located his home or his business.

Parks and Civic Center Facilities

Public pleasure grounds may be divided into three classes: The Wild Park—where natural conditions remain undisturbed as far as possible; The Developed Park—where by skilled treatment and planting such natural features as meadows, woods and lakes are combined; and The Formal Park—which is more in the nature of a garden. A park, if of sufficient size, may pass successfully through these stages. At first a few walks and roads are all that is needed in the way of improvements; then as the park becomes more frequented, and as the natural beauties are more likely to be destroyed, a greater degree of development will follow, gradually the wild park becomes the developed park; then portions of it may in time be treated as a formal garden. This process of evolution may cover a decade.

Precipitous hillsides, where the cost of real estate development would be excessive, ravines, creek bottoms or meadows, which may be subject to periodic flooding, wooded tracts somewhat off the line of transit, and marshes which are unfit for improvement until thoroughly drained, present great opportunities for effective and economical development into parks, and may often be transformed into beauty spots without a large expenditure of money.

In every city are waste areas, areas which are of no use for building purposes, but which are possible and practical to convert into attractive and picturesque parks. It is possible to make a playground by condemning the rears of lots in the interior of a deep block.

The compactly built city requires a greater park space per capita and in proportion to area, than the openly built city. The industrial district has a far greater need of park reservations than does the residential district. The flat park, square or plaza, is well adapted to the former district.

The planning of a park system should receive as careful study as the planning of the transportation and the street systems; it is just as much a part of a comprehensive city plan, and should be governed by the street system; and the street system should bear some relation to the park system. In planning a system of parks provision may be made for connecting them. Streets more than 100 feet wide rarely develop into business thoroughfares, consequently, if those which are to serve as park connections are given a width of from 120 to 150 feet, business will be likely to avoid them, while such width will be sufficient to provide certain park features when the time comes for their development.

The city should buy, previous to development, and reserve for the future, such areas and plots as it deems for its best interests, for large and small parks, open spaces, recreation centers, school grounds, fire-houses and police stations.
